LUKE HENRY CALLAWAY

PREFACE

When asked to write something of the Callaway family for this book; I was very glad to comply with the request. For about ten years I've been working from documents, from conversations, and in libraries all over the eastern part of the United States, tracing out the part played by Callaways in the history of this nation. Some day in the future I hope to produce a novel based on some of the facts I have discovered and organized.

A history of Callaways in the United States would almost be a history of all pioneer families from about 1650 to the present time. Our early ancestors settled in Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina as early as the date mentioned, or near to it. Anthony, Caleb, Thomas, William, and possibly one other Callaway have all been placed by several sources as being in the above mentioned states contemporarily. But the relationships of these four (possibly five) have not been clearly established as yet.

Throughout the wars of the early colonial era there are plentiful records of Callaways helping to establish and mold our nation. The French and Indian War, Revolutionary War, War of 1812, all were wars in which Callaways risked their lives and expended their possessions. The descendants of these Callaways are very numerous and were members of both armies during the Civil War (although the bulk were Confederates), and have served in all wars since.

When Boone went down into Kentucky, he took with him Richard Callaway. Boones and Callaways were united in marriage in several cases. Richard Callaway had a passion for naming counties after himself. A large territory in Kentucky was named Callaway County, and later, when Richard moved into Missouri; he named another county there after himself. The first white child born in Kentucky was part Callaway.

Thomas Jefferson knew and was familiar with a number of Callaway men. Old statutes of Virginia mention the name of Callaway in a number of instances in special laws passed at the time.

One such law was an indemnity for "certain persons in suppressing a conspiracy against this state" (October, 1782-7th. of Commonwealth). The persons named were William Preston, Robert Adams, (junior), James Callaway, and Charles Lynch. It seems that in 1780 the Tories were still fairly strong in Virginia. The above four, with others; took some of these Tories out and whipped them, and did other things unlawful, although possibly justified. Afterwards these people sued for damages, and showed signs of winning their suits. The Virginia legislature then passed a special act of indemnity for the people named.

The now famous "lynch law" arose from the circumstances of these unlawful acts, and the association with one of the participants . . . Charles Lynch. The Callaway, Preston, and Adams families can be thankful that their name did not become thus sloganized so infamously.

Early Callaways were prolific. One . . . James Callaway, had twenty-two children, having married three times. Also, longevity was good, most of the Callaways surviving many years beyond the average for their time.

Although I am not convinced that the fact that famous people descending from a family will make present members any different or better, still it is of passing interest to record that the late president of the United States, Woodrow Wilson, was descended from a Callaway, as is also Lady Astor.

Today, members of the family number in the thousands, and are spread all over the nation, and the world. But the majority in the United States are found in the South. No one has yet compiled a list of all the preachers (mainly Baptists) by the name of Callaway. But in the state of Georgia alone there have been times when they could have held a convention!

Many Callaways have been interested in the history of the family. However, this present volume is the most complete I have yet seen, and I have searched through hundreds of books in Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, and Washington, D. C. Within my life time I hope to see a complete and authentic record established on all the main lines of the family in this country.

Work needing to be done to trace back beyond about 1650 can best be carried out in Ireland and England.

Most of the Callaways have had an honorable record, although of course in such a large number of individuals there have been some "misfits of society." As there is a tendency to not record facts about such members of a family, I can find little evidence about them. Farming seems to have been the chief occupation of a large majority of the Callaways, and even today a great number of them live in rural communities. However, the family has had its share of judges, doctors, preachers (more than its share!), business men, teachers, and scholars.

One word of warning to those who would see in too proud light the part of the Callaways in history. All people today descend from others who contributed just as much, at some time, and at some place, as the average Callaway to the sum total of forces in the world. While it is good to know one's family history, false pride over knowledge of it is unjustified.

Few people can enjoy the thrill of research necessary to establish the facts such as this book presents. Many who enjoy the thrill find it tiresome as the years go by and they but slowly establish their facts. A debt of gratitude, however, is owed to those who do patiently gather information, classify it, give it meaning, document it, and finally present it for publication. Such a debt I acknowledge to the author of this book.

William Thomas Callaway, Jr.

INTRODUCTION

As the manuscript for this book goes to the press no one realizes more fully than the compiler the errors that such a book must necessarily contain, and the incompleteness of the work, yet it seems best not to delay publication longer.

Articles written by members of the Callaway family express their views, and are not necessarily those of the author.

To everyone who has so kindly and freely given assistance, I extend again my expression of appreciation, and here acknowledge my manifold indebtedness.

The letters preceding the name are individual letters and denote the person's place in the line of Callaways. Each letter represents a generation. A—for the first child of the individual family, thus—A-B-C-D—would mean that D—is the fourth child of A-B-C—who was the third child of A-B—who was the second child of A. All names are given a lettering, but only the ones with * are repeated on a succeeding page, where a more extended account of that individual is given.

Abbreviations used in this book are: b.—born, d.—died, m.—married and ca.—about.

Family Bibles used for references are: The Old Anderson Family Bible; Callaway Bible, belonging to Mr. James Franklin, Jr., of Lynchburg, Virginia; Callaway Bible, belonging to Mr. Troy Callaway, of Chattanooga, Tennessee.

Old papers, in the possession of William Willis Callaway, Jr., are copied verbatim.

ANCESTORS

If you could see your ancestors
All standing in a row,
Would you be proud of them or not—
Or don't you really know?
Some strange discoveries are made
In climbing family trees;
And some of them, I am afraid,
Do not particularly please.

If you could see your ancestors
All standing in a row,
There might be some of them, perhaps,
You would not care to know;
But there's another question which
Requires a different view;
If you could meet your ancestors,
Would they be proud of you?

THE CALLAWAYS

Bardsley's "Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames" treats of the name: "Callaway, Callway, Calloway—Local. Not, as suggested by Lower, a corruption of Galloway (through considering the fact that C and G are so constantly interchangeable, the idea was sensible enough), but a surname derived from some small locality in Co. Devon or Cornwall, which I cannot identify. The middle syllable is probably intrusive. . . . The suffix is undoubtedly way, a road, a path." The author lists under this name "Walter Caleway, co. Bucks, 1273," and "William Calleyway, co. Devon, Hen. 111."

Following is an excerpt taken from Mrs. J. A. P. Hill's book, "History of Henry County and Fifty of its Oldest Families:"

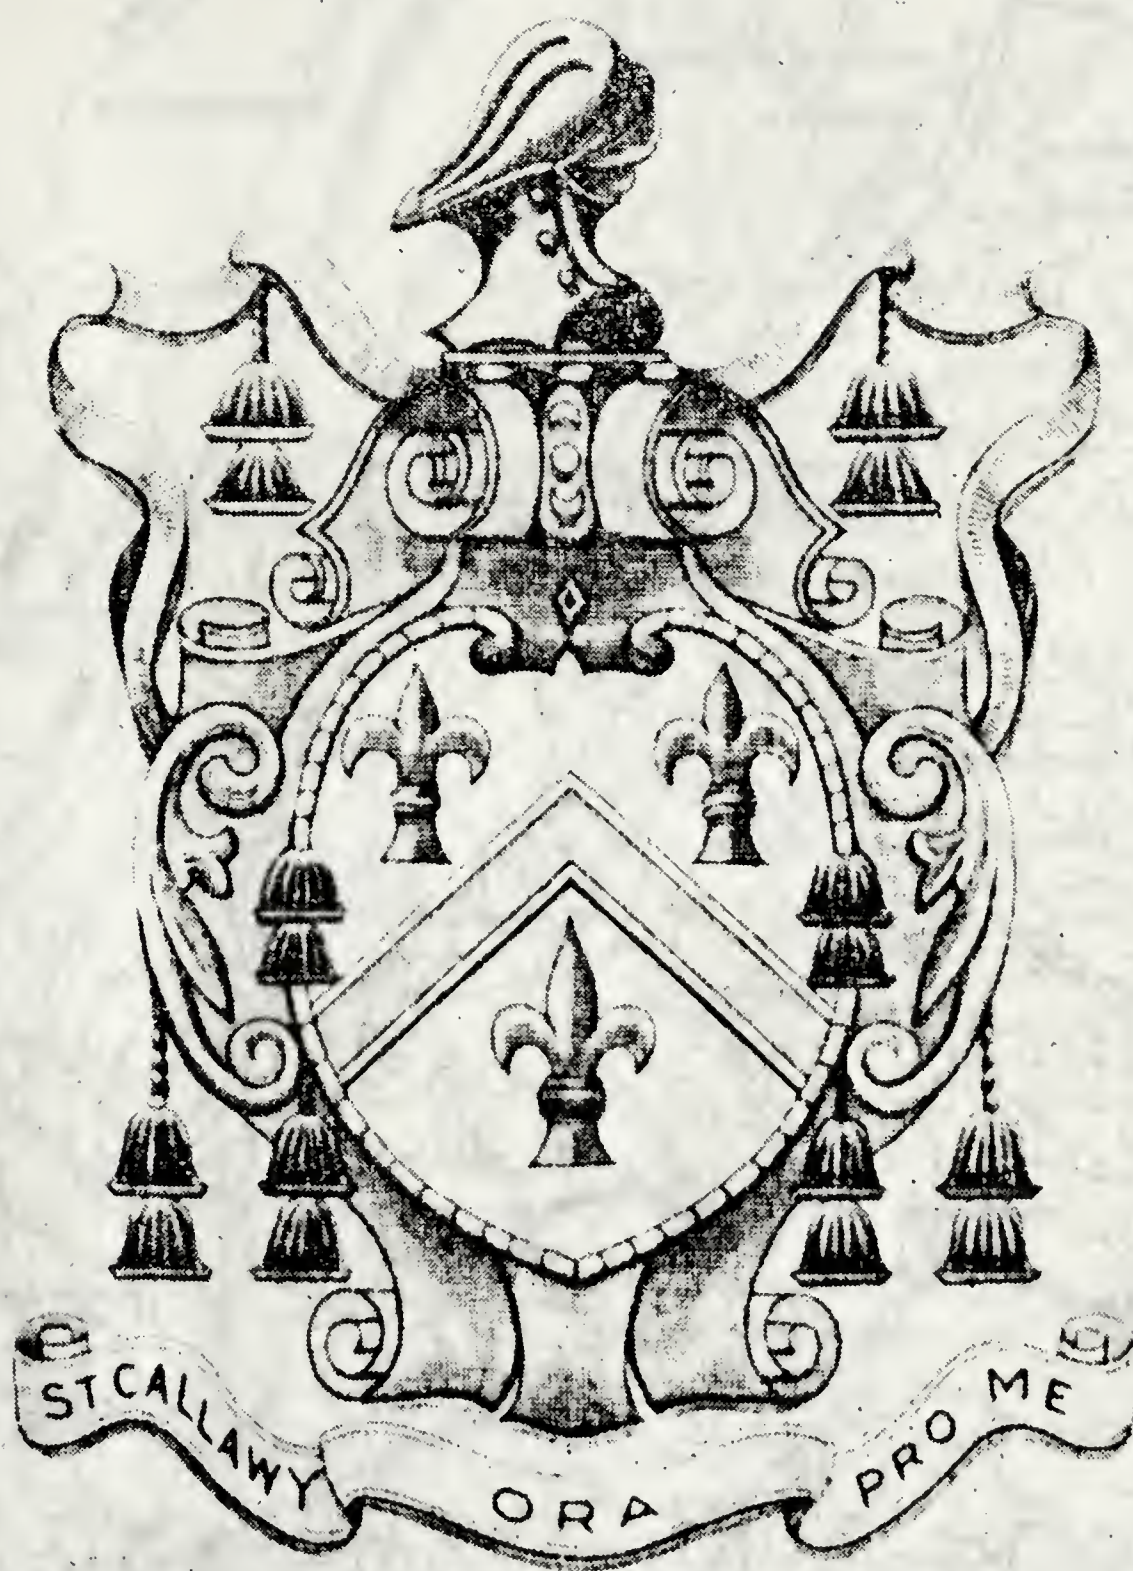

"During 1500 John (A) way placed a window in the church at St. Neots and canonized the Monk, hence, "St. Callaway Ora Pro Me." John Callaway, married at St. Kew, 1677, in Patronymica Britannia (names of Briton) it is stated that Calway and Callaway are of one origin. In a "Historical Sketch of St. Neots" there is much information regarding the family taken from the Library of the British Museum. . . . An entry at St. Kew, Cornwall, gives three brothers: Daniel Callaway, 1620; Richard, 1621; William (Guliel) Calway, 1624. The Callaway family is one of the oldest of Virginia. . . . The founder . . . is variously given as Joseph, William and Francis. . . .

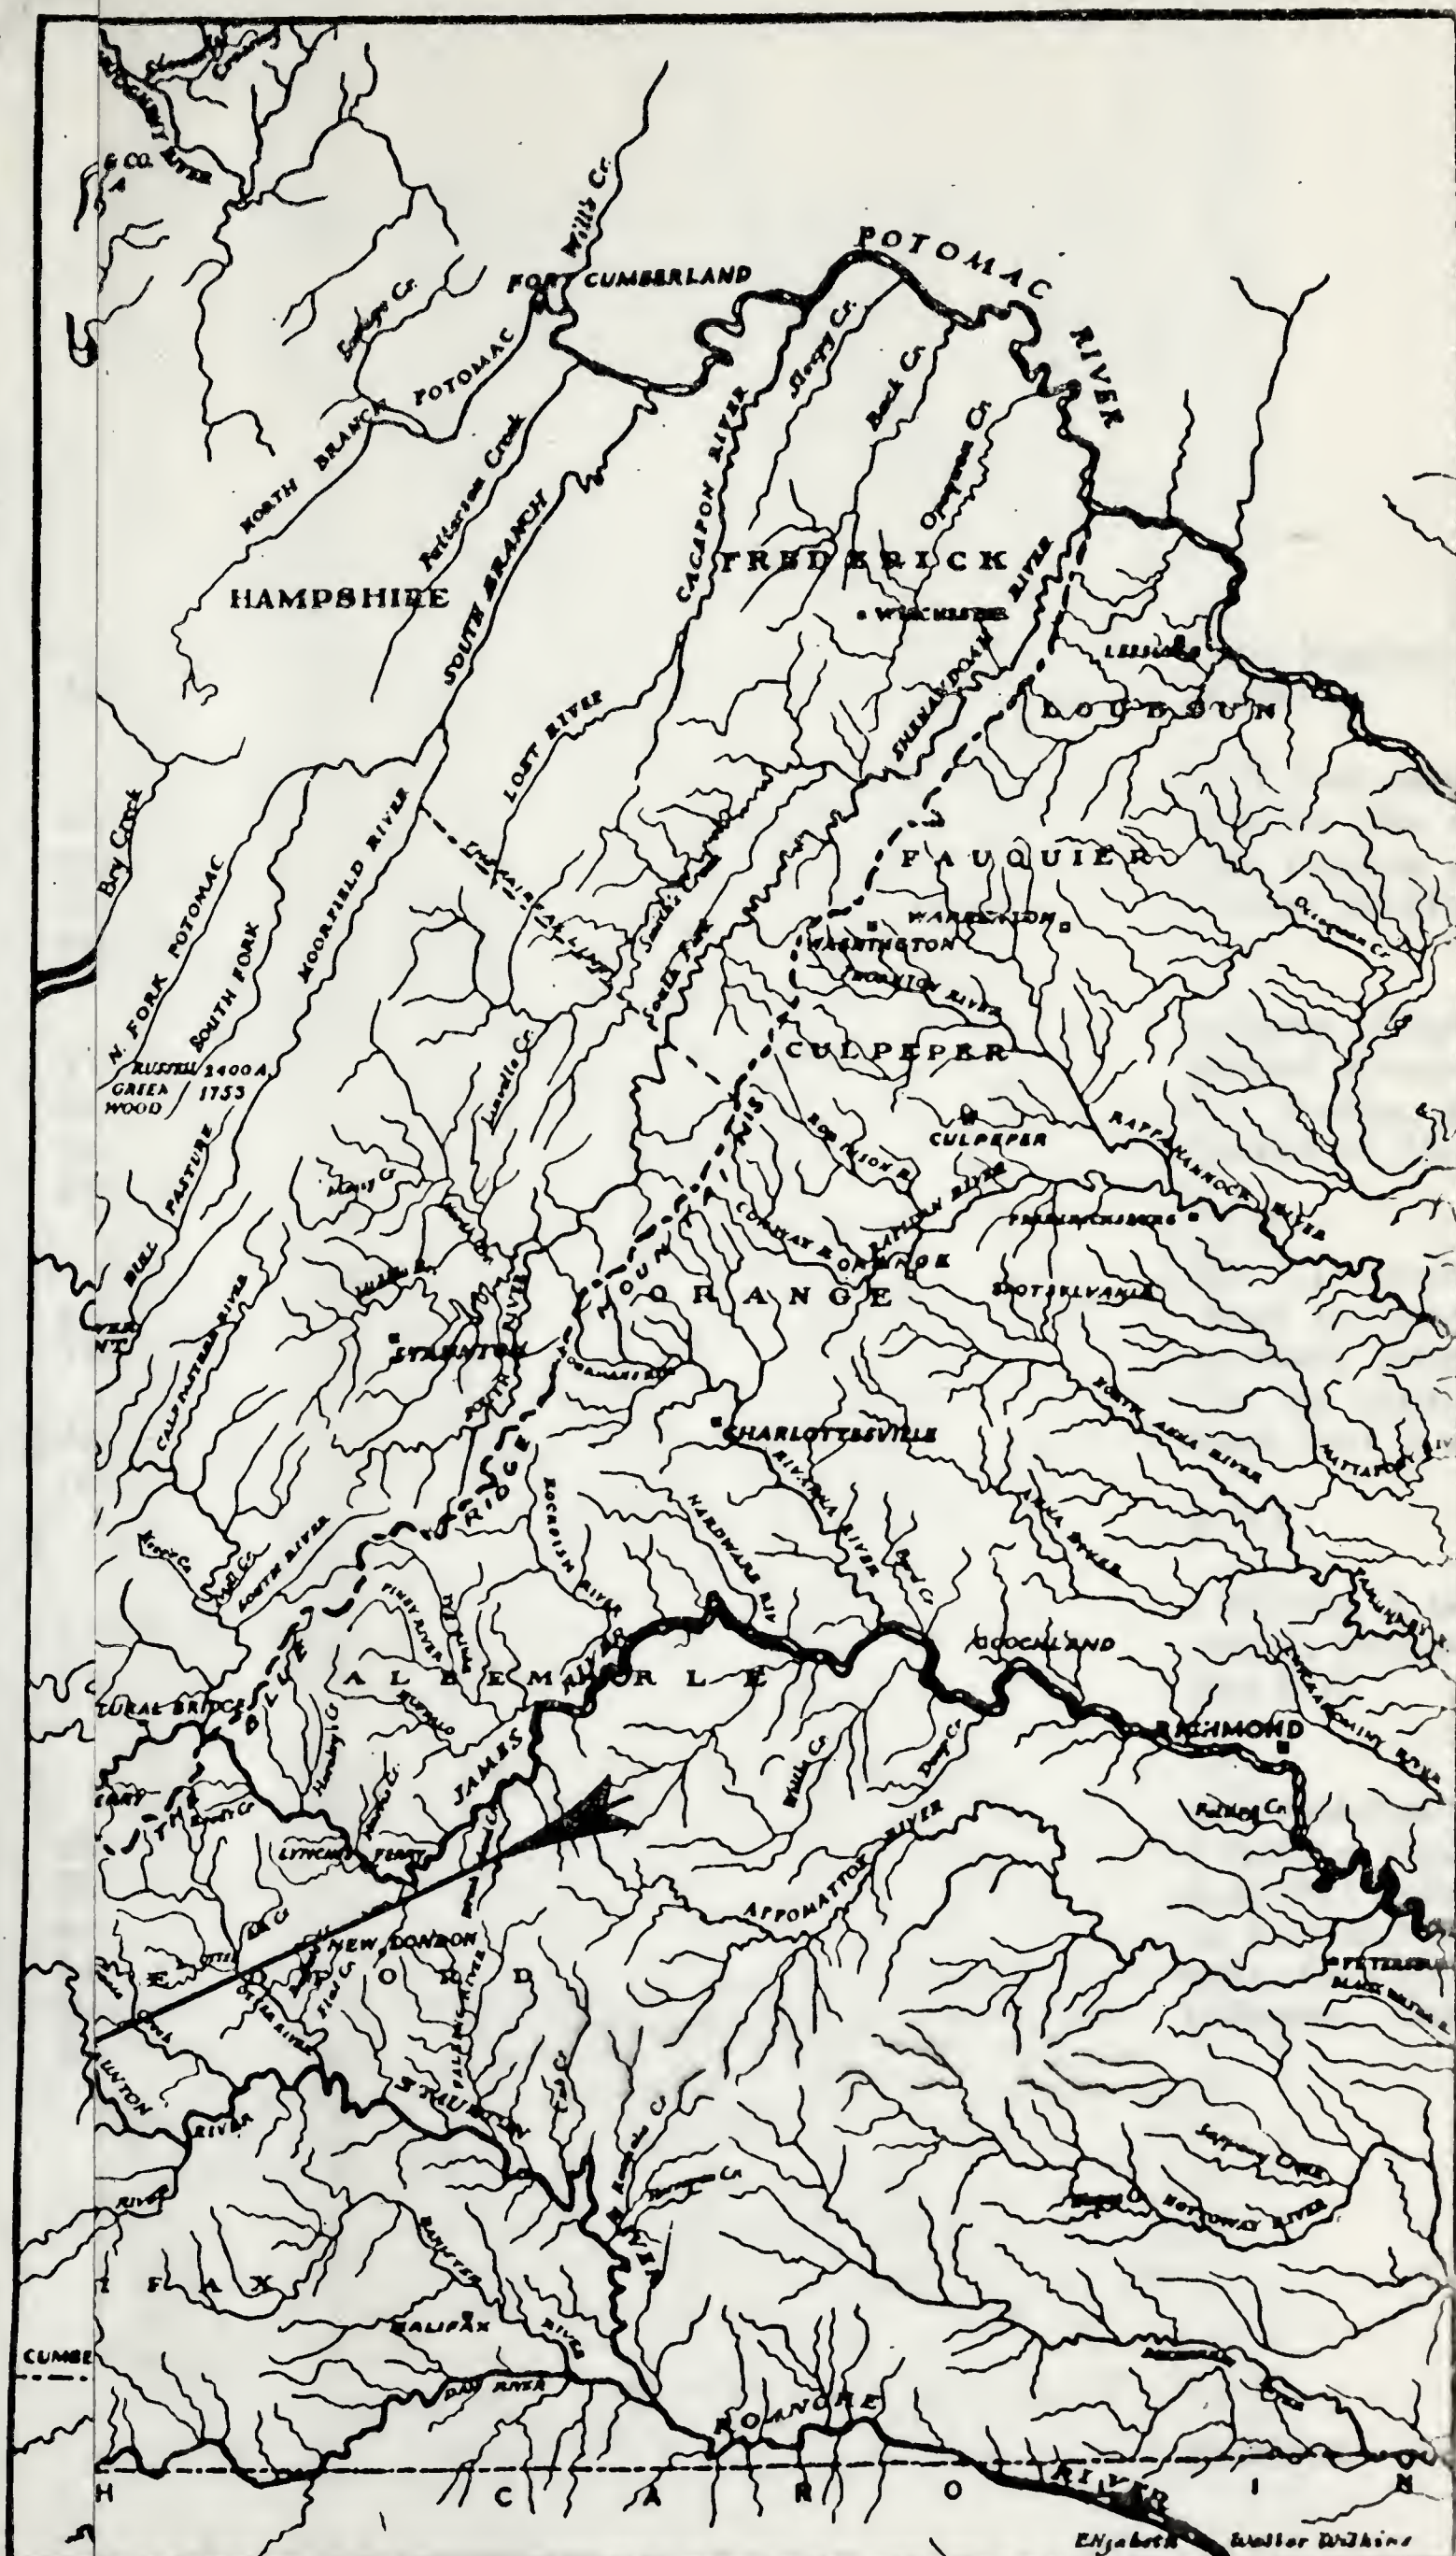

The fact that "Edmund" was used as a Christian name in the family many years after the emigrant, Edmund Callaway, who came from England to Charles City County in 1639, Greer's "Early Virginia Immigrants," strengthens my supposition that he might have been probable father or uncle of Thomas Callaway, the earliest ancestor I have proof of (Thomas who received a grant of land in Charles City County in 1665).

THE CALLAWAY FAMILY

The Canada line of Callaway's came from Tambridge Wells, England, in 1633, and they claim to be the same line that was once spelled "Kalloway."

In Isle of Kent County, Maryland, ANTHONY CALLAWAY took oath of allegiance to Commonwealth of England in 1655. This was about the time this country recalled Charles II to take charge of the Colonies and Virginia and England required his subjects in America who were of age to swear allegiance to him.

In 1661 CALEB CALLAWAY witnessed a deed by Kitecoronon, King of Yoepin, to George Deveant on Perquimons river. Caleb married Elizabeth Lorane. Issue: William, Dorothy, Caleb, Jr., Joshua, Mary. Joshua, who made a Will in 1741, had a son, Thomas, who married Isabel Garrett on March 20th, 1728.

(From N. C., His Reg. Vol. 3-3-410).

THOMAS CALLAWAY I—Emigrated from England, 1665. He received a grant of 766 acres of land in Charles City County, Va., from the crown. Thomas, the son of Joshua, who married in 1728, was doubtless closely related.

There is probably, owing to imperfect records, a break in the chain of descent here. Francis Callaway I being the next member of whom there is any record, from 1712 to 1760.

(Family bibles owned by James Franklin, Jr., Lynchburg, Va.).

FRANCIS CALLAWAY I—Issue: Thomas born 1712; William I born 1714, died 1777; Francis went to N. C., died 1774; Richard I went to Kentucky with Daniel Boone, ~~died 1774~~; James; Elizabeth; Ann; George died 1772.

Born 1724 - Kall 1780:

GENEALOGY OF THOMAS CALLAWAY.

THOMAS CALLAWAY—Son of Francis I, born 1712, and doubtless the oldest son of Francis Callaway, was a Vestryman in 1752 of Antrim Parish, Halifax County, Va., and later Captain of the Colonial Militia of that County in the French and Indian war. He emigrated to North Carolina, and later with four sons (John, Jacob, Joseph, Isaac) settled in Wilkes County, Ga., at the close of the Revolutionary war in 1782-3. Married Miss Anderson. Issue: Elijah, John, Jacob, Joseph, Isaac.

Callaway Family Identified With Early Dixie History

Georgia, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Alabama are colonial homes of the Callaway family. Founder fathers include Anthony Callaway, of Isle of Kent County, Maryland, 1655; Caleb Callaway, of Virginia, 1681, whose wife was Elizabeth Lorane, and their children, Caleb, Jr., William, Dorothy, Mary and Joshua. The last named married Isabel Garrett March 20, 1728, and had a son, Thomas.

In 1665 Thomas Callaway, from England, had a grant of 766 acres in Charles City County, Virginia. It may be that he was a brother of Caleb and that the latter's son, Thomas, was his namesake. At least, that is the supposition.

Francis Callaway is the next name in the family history, and from him the families of North Carolina and of Kentucky trace their ancestry, for his son, Francis, Jr., went to North Carolina and founded a branch of the family, while his brother, Richard, was a pioneer of Kentucky, going there with Daniel Boone.

Other children of Francis Callaway were: Thomas, born in 1712; William, James, George, Elizabeth and Anne. Thomas was living in Halifax County, Virginia, in 1752, and a little later on he was captain of colonial militia in the French and Indian War, 1755-1758. With four sons, he settled in Wilkes County, Georgia, in 1782. A fifth son, Elijah, was born in Georgia. The four born in Virginia were John, Joseph, Jacob and Isaac. Their mother was born Anderson. Her first name has not been handed down to the present day.

Callaway County, Kentucky, is named for Richard Callaway, Boone's companion. Later, Richard went to Missouri, and Callaway County is named for the family. Richard was born in Bedford County, Virginia, in 1724. He also was a soldier, with the rank of colonel, in the French and Indian War. In 1777 he was the first Representative from Kentucky in the Virginia House of Burgesses. Richard and wife, Frances Walton, were the parents of several sons and daughters.

In 1761 William Callaway, Gent., as he is called, made a gift of 100 acres in Bedford County, Virginia, "to be settled into a town." New London was the name, but it was only a hamlet or small town of 70 or 80 homes in 1776.

—Sketch by H. F. Linder.

Coat of arms of the historic Callaway family, which is prominent in the South.

Among families related to the Callaways are the Mercers, Milners, Sanfords and Royalls—the last named of South Carolina.

Records are found in histories of Meriwether and Wilkes Counties, Georgia; Chambers County, Alabama; Hening's Statutes, Volume 3; The Richmond Standard, History of Kentucky, by Collins, Volume 3. Also there is a family Bible extant with valuable data and a carefully compiled family genealogy, by T. W. Callaway, dedicated to the "Clan Callaway."

Kalloway was one way to spell the name in the long ago. There seems to have been a saint in the family—St. Callaway. The coat-armour blazoned in Bolton's Armory has no crest or motto unless it is the legend of St. Callaway, or prayer—"Ora Pro Me."

THOMAS CALLAWAY

Edmund Callaway, father or uncle of Thomas, came from England in 1639; he had a son, Anthony, who is placed in Maryland in 1665. It is believed that brothers William, Caleb, Thomas and Joseph, Sr., came from England with their father before they were of age, as records of their coming to the colonies are missing. Brother Caleb is placed in North Carolina in 1661; William and Joseph, Sr., in Virginia.

Thomas was given a land grant in Virginia in 1665. This would make him born not later than 1644, as grants were only given to men of age. Mrs. Hugh Hardin, tracing on maternal side to Callaway:

"Sir William Callaway, from England, with his two brothers, Caleb and Thomas ca. 1665, settle in Virginia."

William and Mary College Quarterly (1) Vol. 10, pages 31 and 251, gives in the same words:

"Book No. 5 and No. 561, Charles City County":

"Thomas Callaway, February 27, 1665, 766 acres on the north side of James River between head of Florida hundred and Powell's Creek."

FRANCIS CALLAWAY

Francis Callaway, from records I have been able to collect must have been the son of Francis Callaway I, son of Thomas Callaway who was granted land in 1665. (This has not been proven so I have left it out of my records, but Francis Callaway, father of Thomas Callaway 1712, is often referred to as Francis the second.)

"In 1745 Rev. Mr. Stith (the historian) bought 200 acres of land from Francis Callaway of 'Poplar Forest', the founder of the Callaway family, in the Colonies. Francis had three sons—viz., Thomas, Richard, and William."

Thomas Callaway, born in 1712, was the son of Francis Callaway. The first record I found of him was in Caroline County, Virginia: James River Mountains. In 1747 he removed from Orange to Lunenburg, which became Halifax. "The Callaway brothers, Frances, Richard, Thomas, and William - - -, of Caroline County were closely identified with Old Lunenburg and Bedford Counties. It is said that they came to this section in 1740 and were the first men who cleared land and raised corn on the Otter River. (F. B. Kegley's Virginia Frontier, page 112) In the Virginia Historical Magazine Thomas is mentioned many times, as: "Thomas Callaway living in Carolina," Thomas Callaway "Laws of Virginia, Halifax County, September, 1758, 3rd." "George II to Thomas Callaway, 6 lbs. 18 s." Also in William and Mary College Quarterly 1, Vol. 3, page 275, "Capt. Thomas Callaway of Halifax County." Vol. 27, page 26, "Orange County Tithe List." The list is signed: "in all 66 per me Tho. Callaw(ay) Constable."

From Diary of John Early: "Wednesday at 3:00 o'clock Brothers Buxton, Ballen, Jean, Callaway and myself started in a packet, for New York, and in consequence of a hard wind we cast ancor under Sewall's Point. About 2 o'clock the next morning we weighed ancor and about 6 we passed the Capes of Virginia. The Captain soon espied a British Privateer at a distance. Bros. Jean, Callaway and myself were taken powerfully sick and continued so more or less until our voyage was over."

"There was a great confluence of the preachers. Bros. Lee, Buxton, Jean, Callaway, and myself visited the state prison, and I saw a number of poor transgressors of the law of God and man, some of them objects of pity."

"On Sunday morning, the 23rd of May, we left new York for our places of destination, and I was not sorry. Bros. Buxton R., Lattimore, Jean, Ballen, Callaway and myself started again for Norfolk in the packet, Eliza and Martha, Captain Herbert, Master, and no other passengers.

F. B. Kegley's Virginia Frontier:

"--- after the attack on Vause's Fort in 1756, --- Thomas Callaway came from Hickey's Fort and found the mangled bodies lying in heaps. All of Vause's family, he thought, killed, except a daughter, Levice, and two sons who had gone to mill that day. He followed the Indians over the mountain and down the Leevie, Fort of Kentucky, crossing the Ohio River at Leevie Ford near Cincinnati. (Leevice Vause carried that way had put her name on the bark of sycamore and beech trees and given her name to the streams of that region.) After the peace of 1763 she returned home and related the stories of her travels to the Callaways and others. She had seen her family's scalps hung out to dry and their clothes torn off until the skins of animals were needed to take their places."

Thomas Callaway was Vestryman and Church Warden, 1752, of Antrian (sic. Antrim) Parish, Halifax County, Virginia. He was Gentleman Justice and commissioned captain of Militia for that county in the French and Indian War prior to 1755. He emigrated to North Carolina ca. 1758, where he was active in church work; in his later years he settled in Wilkes County, Georgia, 1782.

WILLIAM CALLAWAY

William Callaway, b. 1714, d. 1777. He was the second son of Francis Callaway and brother of Thomas 1712. He was Justice of Peace, Bedford County, Virginia, in 1754, under George II. In 1755 was Major in the French and Indian wars, and in 1758 was made Colonel. In 1758 he was appointed County Lieutenant by the English Government. He remained in Virginia where his son John, b. 1738, was an officer in the Revolutionary War, and was distinguished at Guilford Court House. His son James, b. 1735, became County Lieutenant of Bedford County, Virginia, in 1778. He was one of the Judges in the celebrated Lynch Law cases, and exonerated by the Legislature. He owned the first mines and built the first iron furnace in his section of Virginia. In 1780 he was appointed Vestryman of Russell Parish, Virginia, and in 1785 appointed Sheriff of Bedford County, Virginia, by Thomas Jefferson, Governor of Virginia.

William II, b. 1748, was his third son. He was Justice of Peace, Bedford County, Virginia, in 1776. In 1778 he was commissioned by Government as Lieutenant Colonel. He was buried in the Parish Burial Ground between New London and the Academy.

RICHARD CALLAWAY, b. 1722 d. 1780.

Richard Callaway was Sergeant, Lieutenant, and Colonel, in the French and Indian Wars from Bedford County, Virginia; he was trustee for the town of New London in 1761.

He went to Kentucky with Daniel Boone in 1764; and in 1774 was a member of Transylvania Convention at Boonesbore, Kentucky. He was a Burgess in Virginia in 1777, and was killed by Indians in 1780.

At one time there was a Callaway County, Kentucky. This was named for him. Also Callaway County, Missouri, was named for him.

On July 7, 1776, Elizabeth and Frances, daughters of Richard Callaway, and Jemima, daughter of Daniel Boone, were captured by Indians. Their fathers and a party of men followed for about thirty miles, using the pieces of clothing the girls tore from their clothes to leave a trail. They rescued them after many hardships. In the party was Samuel Henderson, who married Elizabeth, in the first marriage ceremony to be held in Kentucky. Theirs was the first white child to be born in Kentucky. Captain John Holder was also a member of the rescue party; he was in love with Frances, and later married her.

The Callaway girls, Frances and Elizabeth, are referred to many times in histories, in "The Last of the Mohicans" by Cooper, and many other stories.

JOSEPH CALLAWAY

1754-1821

Joseph Callaway was born September 21, 1754, in Halifax County, Virginia. His family moved to North Carolina when he was small. He grew up in North Carolina and married Sabrina Morgan, June 12, 1777. His first two children, William and John, were born in North Carolina. While there he fought in the Revolutionary War. The Callaways were very prominent in the war, and there is still a part of an old song on record:

William and Mary Quarterly (1) Vol. 13, page 204, "a snatch of an old song of the Revolution is still repeated—"

"Hurrah for Captain Bob, Colonels Lynch and Callaway,
They never let a Tory rest till he cries out, 'Liberty'."

Extract from a letter from Mary Callaway Jones (Mrs. Frank F.) dated December 20, 1928, sent to me by Mrs. Morgan Callaway, Jr.

"I found him in Rowan County, North Carolina, before August, 1778, when he had land granted him adjoining his improvements. He lived adjoining his brother Joshua and his wife, —, just across the county line (of Montgomery County) from his brothers: John, Isaac, and Job Callaway, and Joseph Henderson. In April, 1787, he and his wife, Sabrina, sold his grant of 320 acres on Royal Creek, and by August, 1787, I found his name signed to a deed in Wilkes County, Georgia. A deed in 1788 in Wilkes County, Georgia, mentions Joseph and Sabrinah and son, George. George was dead by 1803, when Joseph deeded lands to his children and did not mention George. When they removed to Wilkes County, the deeds and tax books show that Joseph Callaway, Joseph Henderson, William and Peter Bangston, John King, and Richard Reynolds all live on Clark's Creek.

"I found Joseph's Revolutionary service on record at Raleigh in Vol. VIII, page 28, folio 2, of North Carolina. Army Accounts in the North Carolina Historical Commission. He was a soldier of the North Carolina Brigade in 1777, who were the Regulars instead of the militia."

"He moved at the close of the war to Wilkes County, Georgia. The rest of his children were born in Georgia. He has decendants in most parts of Georgia.

JESSE CALLAWAY

1796-1875

Jesse (early spelling Jefse) Callaway was the eighth child of Joseph Callaway and Sabrina Morgan Callaway, who came from North Carolina to Wilkes County, Georgia, where Jesse was born in 1796. He grew up in Wilkes County, serving as a soldier in the War of 1812. He married Matilda K. Hughs in 1818. They had one child, Lydia Boren. His wife died in 1820. In 1821 he married Mary Ann Sherman. Their only child was Frances Jemina. His second wife died in 1826. His third marriage in 1828 was to Mrs. Mary Ann Wootten Sherman. Their children were: Thomas Wootten, Joseph Morgan, Sabrina Mildred, Joshua, Mary Ann Matilda, Clarisa Elizabeth, John James Sharman, Martha Sarah, and Jesse.

He owned large areas of land and many slaves, operating a number of plantations in Georgia. His slaves were the best treated negroes in the State, so the story goes, and were referred to by other slaves as "The stuck-up Callaway Niggers." It was probably on his Wilkes County plantation that he first had kerosene lamps, referred to as the first in that part of the country, and viewed by people for miles around (through the windows, from outside, because they were afraid to get nearer).

While living in Wilkes County he served as administrator for a great many people, among them his father Joseph's Estate (1830). He also acted as guardian for his sisters, Mary and Elizabeth, and a number of other orphans. He was a shrewd and successful business man. A Wilkes County record shows a large number of personal notes he held in 1851, also a record of the purchase of a manufacturing company in Washington, Georgia, for which he paid $3924.21 in 1859.

In the words of his children and business associates, "He was a hard man, but just and respected." This quotation from a letter to him from D. W. Humphreys of Tunnel Hill, Georgia, written in 1866, confirms this statement, "The price agreed on is 4500 dollars which was so far above the price you offered that I did not think worth while to offer you the refusal of it at that price, knowing as I did your candid manner of trading."

He moved to Whitfield County, Georgia, in 1850. After the death of his third wife, he married Mary Catherine Kirby, his fourth and last wife, in 1856. Their children were: William Willis, Nettie Jane, Luke Henry, Joseph Samuel, Woodson Kirby, Ella Abnes, and Waylan.

He was a very successful gentleman farmer. He had plantations: 1. Near Washington, Georgia, which his son Thomas managed for him, after he left Wilkes County. 2. Near La Grange, Georgia, which Thomas also helped to oversee. 3. Two places in Whitfield County, Georgia, that his son John saw to for him. Evidently he also had property in Randolph County, Georgia, and in other counties that we fail to have clear records of.

He sold large amounts of cotton, corn, and wheat to firms and individuals in La Grange, Washington, Augusta, Dalton, and Tunnel Hill.

During the Civil War ac 1865 he refugeed with his family to Randolph County, Georgia, soon moving to Meriwether County, Georgia, from there. His son John was in charge of his Whitefield County business during his absence. From records during the war we know that Jesse Callaway was more prosperous than most Georgians, as he sold large amounts of corn, wheat, and cotton, and had cash when others could not raise money. He lent money to his children and to many others, during and directly after the war, charging his children "the usual interest."

He returned to Whitfield County in 1870 with his family. He stayed there, trying to keep his land up after the war, with less success than before the war. He died August 29, 1875, and is buried in the Callaway Cemetery on the Old Callaway Place.

(Compiled by Maud Callaway Hays, great granddaughter, from Jesse Callaway's personal papers, in possession of W. W. Callaway of Tunnel Hill).

JESSE CALLAWAY

Jesse Callaway, born 1796, died 1875, fought in the War of 1812 at the age of sixteen. His sons fought in the Confederate army during the war between the states. His wife drew a small pension from the Government of twelve dollars per month. Often she helped relatives by giving part of this money where she thought it was needed most.

During the war he refugeed from his home in Whitfield County, Georgia, to Cuthbert, Georgia. After the war he got on a horse and rode the surrounding country over calling upon the people, asking them what they needed most. By the grace of God no one will ever know where the much needed articles were found. In a few days a wagon pulled up to their doors with implements and rations.

Wherever he lived, the anvil ringing in his blacksmith shop could be heard from early morning until night, hammering and shaping metals for the means of livelihood and growing progress.

He raised his own sheep for clothing. Carding, spinning, and weaving of wool was one continual task in his house. Often warm garments were knitted for neighbors, friends, and relatives, less fortunate. He was a pioneer leader his descendants are well proud of.

Letters to Jesse Callaway from daughters Sabrina & Clara Elizabeth

Dec 26th 1868

(Whitfield County, Ga.)

My Dear Pa & Ma

We moved here safely on the 18th should have written sooner but I was very tired & Mr Wood had to go every day to Tunnel or Dalton Bette wrote however & you have no doubt recieved her letter. I was very much fatigued but begin to feel all right. We will move out now as soon as the weather moderates has been tremendous cold already today. We was so glad Bette & Nettie were here. Mr Wood has rented a store house in Dalton & get fitted up as soon as possible. Dont be bothered about Bette & Nettie all getting on finely and Mamie & Nettie are just fitted up—Nettie is very good & every one loves her. I am sorry I didnt get here before Pa Bud & the children left, but hope to see you up soon as harvest is not far off. Eddie says tell you neighbors have called. Mrs. Lee Graham will come today. We will all write more fully soon. You must both write & get Bud to do the same. Mr Wood will write the first hours he has.

Affectionately Your
Daughter Sabrina

Eddie is as fat as a pig & perfectly at home.

June 16th 1869

My Dear Father

We have just got through with dinner Mr Wood gone back to the store, Mamie to school, Baby asleep, and Eddie busy making him a play house with some blocks out in the Plaza, (where he spends most of his time to see the cars pass).— — — Our time in this house will be out by 11th of next month & we hope to be ready to move then & be fixed up better & then Woody can be with us more & not neglect his business either. — — — We hope to see you up soon as harvest is not far off. Eddie says tell you you must make haste and move he wants to stay some with you. Tell them our vegetable up here are late, but I have had greens, irish potatoes, lettuce, english peas a few times. Had a dew berry pie for dinner today.— — — Mr Wood will write some in this tonight.

Your Affectionate
Daughter Sabrina

I have moved my store to a new brick building two stories high am going to live in upper story. I have sold as many goods up to this time as I expected to when I commenced. I suffer cash trade. Always dull at this season of the year has been unusually dull for several weeks past and will be for several weeks yet then expect trade will servive. — — — If I could know when you are comming I would meet you at the Depot.

(Sabrina's husband, Mr Wood)

Dalton Ga March 31st 1868

Dear Father,

I was at Tunnel Hill when your letter came. Johnnie wants me to stay all the year and assist him, says he will give me one hundred dollars & my board but I am afraid he isnt able to pay so much and besides he has so little house room, so I have decided that maby it is best for me to go home. Several families have told me they would send to me if I would teach. I have never tried to get a school here for Sis Bina has been sick for some time she can now walk about the house. If it is convenient for you to send Buddie for me you can do so at any time if not it wont make any difference. They all say you must let him stay long enough to visit around. Late letters from Washington all well. Love to all. I will write Ma soon.

Your Affectionate Daughter

Letters to Jesse Callaway from granddaughter Nanniela and son Thomas.

Washington Ga.
April 21, 1870.

Dear Grandpa,

Your letter was received several days ago & you cannot imagine how highly we appreciate it— because you wrote it. We recieved letters also from Aunts Beffie & Brina, telling of uncle Johnie's milking & Uncle Jesse's ploughing; Buddie ploughs every day, he has three men hired & says he will make twenty bales of cotton. He has finished planting corn & Planted most of his cotton. Sis Jessie & Leila are going to school at the Seminary to Mr Qwin, who is considered a very good teacher. Willis has learned his letters & spells simple words very well, (for five years old boy) he does any thing— is now busy, filling baskets with seed for the men. Sallie is learning to sew and wishes daily "to grow to be a lady so she can make her drapes & wear her hair in a knot." Paul is the jolliest little fellow about; can walk any where and is afraid of nothing, he is learning to talk & pronounces what he attempts very distinctly. Mother, Sis Belle & I are at home now, though I have not finished school yet. We do all the house work, have a very good cook & milker. Sis Belle has been sick in bed all this week, got up this Morning, but says she feels very weak. She of all your granchildren you would know, for she is the image of Pa. Bud is more like Mother's family. Sis Jessie has grown tall & is quite stout. Leila resembles Pa but but is rather low. She is very mischievous & prides herself upon using big words. And if you were to see me you would never know I was any kin to you or Pa either. I am the tallest in the family except Pa & resemble him only as to my nose, which is pronounced decidely "a Callaway one" by cousin Joe Callaway. Sis Belle says I am like Uncle Joshua. I don't think I am like any body. Pa calls me his crane.

We were glad to hear Grandma & all were well. Nettie can make her own drapes I expect, tell her Leila makes her own & does it very well for a little girl. Willis & Luke are large boys & I know must help you a great deal about feeding the horses &c. Ask Sammy for me if he ever gets any whippings at school? Tell him Willis says that is the reason he wants Sis Belle & Nannie to teach him, he is afraid the teacher might whip him sometimes. We would all be so glad to see all or any of you, but I wish particularly that you would come, I want you to eat some of the biscuit, pudding, & cakes I make. I know you would enjoy them. All join me in love to all. Grandpa please write me a letter yourself, I want it to keep. I intend to write to you often. Hoping this will be interesting to you I will close. Aff—

Your Child

My dear Father:

Enclosed please find balance due you— not hearing from you about the interest and not knowing even whether you got the one hundred Dollars I sent you a few weeks ago. I carry out the account regularly, charging for hauling and counting interest at the rate you said, vi-7 pr. ct.

This leaves us all well. We have fine weather now. Our cotton crops are short— but thanks to a kind providence I make a very fair and you corn crop. I think our upland (home crop of 20 acres) average 17 bu pr acre— low land have not gathered but it will make near 30 bu pr acre only 3 acre! I hope the a/c will be found right and satisfactory— Am still very sorry I could not refund sooner.

Love to all Your Af— Son

Letter from Thomas Callaway to his father, Jesse Callaway
At Home Feb. 27 1863

My Dear Father:

Yours about Piano & Clock came to hand a few days ago. I have delayed writing until I could hear from the man who had engaged to fix up the Childras' graves. He came yesterday & finished them today and I have paid him for both of them. You will see bill on the last leaf of this letter. I send you my note for the balance due you for the Piano. The Piano & Clock have not arrived yet. This leaves us all in good health excepting Leila & two of the negro children They are not dangerous, but the little negroes have pretty smart fever. Leila complains most of her stomach. Has some fever. We have at last a case of Small pox in town. It is the child of Joseph Hamilton about 14 months old. A very fine hearty child. James Price Jr. brought disease here in his clothes from a Hospital in Atlanta, where he was acting nurse. We are taking all precautions to prevent its spreading.

I have just received a letter from Morgan today & one from Joshua yesterday & from Johny about 10 days ago. All of them were very well. Morg had but two cases of Small pox that were dangerous. He was at home but would soon have to return. Josh was in Savannah but thought he would likely be moved soon. His regiment had had a good many fusses of late. He was in none of them. Johny was making a great "todo" about and over a box of things that Sallie had sent him. I have but little news to write more than I have written. We have had a few days of nice weather. But generally we have had a great deal of rain of late. I have a few more oats to sow.

Austin sent me three nice pigs for my trouble in buying him corn &c. They came right through in good order, by express and charged me only $4.50 for the three.

Uncle Henry Wootten has moved up to Stone Mountain So is trying Georgia again. I received a note from him the other day. He will be here at March Court.

Do you know what the sentence was against the man who stole your horse? I expect you lock your stables or lot gate now dont you?

Write often to your

Affec. Son

Thomas.

Little Susie's case	$41.50
Little Sallie's	$46.38
Cash paid you by Austin	87.50

Due you	$116.12

I send you my note for that amount hoping it will reach you all right.

Sallie & Children all send love to all.

I write the note payable to you or "order" in case it should get lost— no one could collect without your signature

My dear Father

Your favor of late date came to hand a day or two ago. There were 135 Bus of the corn gotten from the Carriage house measured in the shuck & 43 bus. gotten from the King Place.

Dr. Quinn & Mr. Richardson are now gathering corn, & will this evening comence sewing wheat. I am confined in the house today, with my eye, which is broken out with the St. Anthony's fire. Old Anthony has moved his house, & will he says in a few days move his chimney.

Anthony came down here this morning, & says he wants to come after your wagon, but has not funds enough. Wants me to ask you if you will express, or send about 8 or 10 Dols. to bear his way down there. I would let him have the money in a minute myself, but I nor Dr. Quinn neither one can raise a dollar.

He wants to start next monday week, or as soon there after as possible.

My dear Father

Your letter of recent date came to hand on last tuesday. On the same day I rec'd the 200 Dolls. by Express & paid it over to Mr. Graham in presence of witness the same day as I returned from the Tunnel.

I rendered in your land to the Tax Recievor at the am't directed in your letter. I gave in this place at $3000. I thought that was about the market value.

My dear Father

As I promised you in my last letter, I went on last saturday & examined the crops on both your places. After looking at the crops I had a great deal of driving to do, & consequently could not write this letter saturday excusing Sunday, I spent with my family at Our Place. - - - - -

Well to return to the crops &c, Dobson has a good crop on the whole. All of his wheat except one piece is extra fine. - - - - -

We next went to the negro crop; expecting to see grass & weeds plenty: but I am glad to inform you that Anthony's crop of corn & wheat both is as good as any body's I've seen. Tom's corn is good too, but his wheat is no account. He has not got much however. Their crops are just as clean as Dobson's & any one would admire the good order in which they have laid off & planted their crops. - - - - -

Love to all,

DR. MORGAN CALLAWAY, SR.

Morgan Callaway, Sr., was born April 16, 1831, in Washington, Georgia. He was the son of Jesse Callaway and Mrs. Mary Ann Wootten Sherman Callaway, being the second son of the third marriage of his father.

Morgan was married (1) to Eliza Mary (called Leila) Hinton, of Greenville, Georgia, on April 8, 1851. They were the parents of seven children.

Morgan was married (2) to Georgia Frances Fickler, of Washington, Georgia. There was one child by the second marriage.

His early training was obtained in schools of Washington, Georgia. He was graduated from the Academy when quite young. Subsequently he entered the University of Georgia, at Athens, where he received an A.B. degree with high honors, in 1849, and the A.M. degree in 1852. Before the latter degree was obtained, he studied law in the office of Judge Toombs, of Augusta, and was admitted to the Bar in 1852. However, at the request of his father, who was opposed to the law as a profession, he gave up being an attorney and taught for a time.

In 1860 he was licensed to preach by the M.E. Church, South, and became a member of the Georgia Conference that year, in its session in Augusta. At the same time he was appointed President of Andrew Female College in Cuthbert, Georgia. After serving somewhat more than a year, he volunteered for service under the Confederate flag. In 1862 he became a lieutenant in Cutts' Battalion and afterwards was made a Captain of Artillery. Major Robert Stiles' book, "Four Years Under Marse Robert," gives a vivid account of Captain Callaway's service under General Robert E. Lee, which service continued to the end of the war.

Returning home, he taught in Washington, Georgia, at the Young Ladies' Seminary there.

From 1868 to 1871 he was president of La Grange Female College, Georgia. In the latter year he was awarded the degree of D. D. by Emory College, Georgia. For over 25 years (1871-1899) he was connected with Emory College as Vice-President and as Professor, successively, of Latin and of English. For an interim of two years, he was President of Paine Institute, in Augusta, Georgia. (1882-1884)

His published works include the following:

"The Education of Woman", 1871

"Our Mother Tongue," 1877

"The Aesthetics of Literature", 1879

"Christian Communism", 1881

"Our Man of Macedonia: His Needs and Our Duties", 1883

A Candlelit Column — by Corra Harris

"Here the Methodist of me knelt in tears. For the Oxford I knew was so thoroughly tinctured with Methodism that the whole life of the town flowed in and out the doors of this church. How well I remembered the men who used to stand in the pulpit, not to mention the one I remember best. Dr. Moore, that ascetic old Isaiah whose ministry put the fear of God into many a wanton youth. Dr. Morgan Callaway, with his elegance and sword-clashing salute to the Commander-in-chief of all mankind. A fearless old soldier of the cross with a back so straight and a manner so proud one could not escape the impression that the Lord had decorated him for distinguished service. - - -"

He was a distinguished scholar, who was for many years professor of English at the University of Texas. (See Vol. 18 of "Who's Who in America," for other data concerning him.)

During the forty-six years he spent as professor of English at the University of Texas, Dr. Morgan Callaway, Jr., '81 became widely known as an authority on the English language.

At the time of his death, Dr. Callaway was considered one of the foremost scholars in his field, and a teacher of unusual ability. The esteem held for him by his former students was demonstrated when Hyder E. Rollins, professor of English in Harvard University, dedicated his book, "A Poetical Rhapsody," to "My Teacher and Friend, Morgan Callaway, Junior."

The published results of his scholarly research are looked upon as the authoritative works in the field of his specialty. His study, "The Infinitive in Anglo-Saxon," published in 1913 by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, is one of his best known works. Among his other works are "The Absolute Participle in Anglo-Saxon," "Studies in the Syntax of the Lindisfarne Gospels," "The Historic Study of The Mother Tongue," and "The Temporal Subjunctive in Old English." In 1933 he wrote "The Consecutive Subjunctive in Old English," which was published as a monograph by the Modern Language Association.

In 1895 Dr. Callaway edited "The Select Poems of Sidney Lanier." He was assistant literary editor of the twenty-three volume "Library of Southern Literature," published in Atlanta between 1909 and 1923.

He was born at Cuthbert, Georgia, and received both the A. B. and Master's degrees from Emory before he was 22 years old. He became adjunct professor of English at Emory, leaving this position in 1883. After two years as professor of English at Southwestern University he entered Johns Hopkins University as a university scholar. He was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and became a fellow in his second year. Upon receiving his doctor of philosophy degree he returned to Southwestern. In 1890 he was called to the University of Texas.

Dr. Callaway was on the executive council of Modern Language Association of America in 1892; vice-president of the organization in 1920, and first vice-president in 1928.

JOSHUA CALLAWAY

Joshua Callaway, the fourth child and third son of Jesse and Mary Ann Callaway, was born on June 21, 1836, in Wilkes County, Georgia. Joshua, as well as his brothers and sisters, was given the best education to be obtained in the ante-bellum days in the South.

On June 10, 1855, he married Lizzie S. Ellington of Washington, Georgia. Since his wife was a devout Presbyterian and Joshua a Baptist of the traditional Callaway faith, they compromised by joining the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Joshua and his wife then went to live in Whitfield County on a plantation given them by his father. Their only son, Clifton, and three daughters, Stella, Ettie Lou, and Eula were born there. The three girls died in their teens.

In order to escape Sherman's destructive March to the Sea, Joshua moved his family and also his father Jesse with his family, to southwest Georgia, in Randolph County. Joshua's elder brother, Morgan Callaway, was already well established there. Joshua bought a large plantation and settled down, but soon afterwards was called to fight for the cause of the South.

While in the Army, Joshua contracted pneumonia and was sent home to be better cared for. He did not recover from this great malady, however, and died on December 17, 1863.

His son, Clifton, lived to be nearly eighty-five years of age. He died on February 26, 1941, in Randolph County.

JOHN J. S. CALLAWAY, 1844-1905

John James Sharman Callaway was born in Wilkes County, Georgia, April 4, 1844.

He was the son of Jesse Callaway and Mary Wooten Callaway. When he was quite young, his father moved to Whitfield County, Georgia. While living here, he was baptized, at the age of nine, in Chickamauga Creek, near Gordon Springs, Georgia. The church where he was baptized as well as the post office are both long since gone.

He entered Mercer University in his early teens, and while a student there he began to preach. He completed the junior class at Mercer, and went from there into the Confederate Army, serving three years as a soldier.

He was ordained to preach at Bethel Church in Randolph County, Georgia, where he was teaching at that time in 1866.

He was married three times, first to Miss Ella Quinn of Wilkes County, Georgia. To this marriage five children were born: Lucy, Chaudoin, Quinn, Marion, and Gus. Marion died in early childhood.

His second marriage was to Mrs. Possie Barksdale Sale, a young widow with two small sons, Simmon and Higginson, who was living at Gashen in Lincoln County, Georgia, on April 11, 1875. To this marriage nine children were born: Polly, Annie Willis, Frank Barksdale, Richard Fuller, Sabina Elizabeth, Possie Barksdale, Jessie Catherine, John J. S., Jr., and Matilda.

He was married in 1901 to Miss Rosa Norman, of Nalhalla, South Carolina, and to this marriage one child was born, but died at birth.

Most of Mr. Callaway's pastoral life and work was spent in northwest Georgia, having served the following churches: Dogwood Valley and Tunnel Hill in Whitfield County; Sugar Valley, Salem, and Calhoun in Gordon County; Adairsville, Kingston and Cossville in Bartow County.

In addition to his preaching he taught for many years and helped to shape the educational policies of several associational schools. He did teaching at Gordon Springs, Calhoun, Tunnel Hill, Cumming, Buford, Dacula, Dalonega, and Greenville.

For a number of years he was president of the trustees of Ryals High School, at Sugar Valley, Georgia, having spent much time and energy building up this fine school which served a large area in northwest Georgia. At one time it ranked as one of the best schools in all that section of the state.

In his later years he was unable to serve churches on account of his throat, a trouble which was the result of exposure during his army life, and which gave him concern and discomfort ever afterward.

He died at Greenville, Georgia, October 10, 1905, to which town he had gone to live only two months previous. He had gone there as superintendent of the school and was just getting off to a good start when he was stricken with paralysis from which he died about two days later. The stroke came on one night as he was leading the mid-week prayer meeting in the Baptist Church at Greenville. He had always said he wished to die in harness, and this is really what he did. He is buried in the cemetery at Greenville, among people whom he had learned to love during the short time he was with them as teacher.

His life was a model one, his work of the highest order. Loyal and perseveringly he adhered to every principle tending to better the condition of his fellowmen; strenuously and unflinchingly opposing every measure which was hurtful to humanity. His was a beautiful and fruitful Christian life. His theme was always Jesus Christ and Him crucified as the foundation of every hope and the source of every blessing. His life was an inspiration as well as a benediction, and his influence still flows in the memory of many, who knew him best, as a stream of sweet waters.

WILLIAM WILLIS CALLAWAY

1857-1932

William Willis Callaway was the oldest child of Jesse and Mary Catherine Kirby Callaway born in Whitfield County near Gordon Springs in the old Callaway brick home. When he was a small boy, the family refuged to Cuthbert, Georgia, returning about 1870. His father died when he was eighteen. About a year after his father's death he decided to go West. While in Texas he married Fannie Fern Barkley; they had two children: a daughter Emma Fern, and a son William, who died in infancy. The wife lived only a few years. After her death he returned to Georgia with his small daughter and lived with his mother near Rocky Face.

He married Alice Jerene Dunn on October 1, 1889. They had four sons and two daughters: Nell, Gussie, Harry, William, Wayland, and John. The better part of his life he operated a grist mill and cotton gin near Tunnel Hill, Georgia, along with raising cattle and farming. He gave his children a good education, not only the three R's in school, but a firm and solid schooling from sound advice administered through the years.

He actively entered into the life of the community in which he lived. For a time he was the Justice of the Peace, and for several years he served as a member of the Board of Trustees for Tunnel Hill High School. He was also the community Veterinarian and district Road Commissioner.

He joined the Dogwood Baptist Church and later became Sunday School Superintendent. He had previously joined the Presbyterian Church with his first wife. He said he married two good women and joined the church with both of them.

NETTIE JANE CALLAWAY-CRAWFORD

1858-1943

Nettie Jane Callaway was born in the "Callaway Brick" in Whitfield County, Georgia, on November 29, 1858. She had one sister and six brothers, and quite a few half sisters and brothers. Her father was Jesse Callaway and her mother Mary Catherine Kirby. She married William Harris Crawford at an early age, meeting him at her father's house while he was visiting her older brothers.

William Harris Crawford was born in Charleston, South Carolina, in 1846. Father or "Pop" was educated in several schools, Georgetown, Kentucky; Oxford, Mississippi; and Mercer at Panfield, Georgia. His father was first and last an Educator and is rated as one of the best men in the Baptist ministry. His mother was Anne Catherine Layed.

My Father entered the Army early in 1864 and was with the artillery and fought in Virginia. The order came: "Cut down your guns and bury them and report at- - -" But the news came: "Lee has surrendered." The men went home, and that explains why Lee had so few men to surrender.

My father and mother lived at Belfont till early in the 1900's, then in Dalton and Atlanta. My father was a progressive farmer, and my mother was a good housewife. She kept a good home and raised turkeys, geese, and bees.

They did their best to educate the children. They helped to build the Callaway School and a church. Our young friends were largely Callaways. I remember an Easter hunt near Old Trickum; Claud (Luke's son) said the hen laid the eggs, while I insisted the rabbit did. All the time mother and Aunt Angie (Luke's wife) were busy making boiled eggs, with stains from calico.

Children born to Nettie Jane and William Harris are: Nathaniel Macon; married and raised his family in North Georgia. Jesse Callaway, died as a young man leaving no issue. William Bibb, loved by all, married and had two sons. Hubert Harris; married and also raised his family in North Georgia. Rosa Gerdine, married but had no issue, died young. Mary Katherine, a missionary in China, has written a book about Chinese Missions.

Our church, school, and home life are pleasant to remember.

LUKE HENRY CALLAWAY

Luke Henry Callaway was the third child of Jesse Callaway by his fourth wife, Mary Catherine Kirby. He was born at Callaway Place, Dogwood Valley, Whitfield County, Georgia, October 7, 1860.

In 1865 he refugeed, with the family, to Randolph County, Georgia; moving to Meriwether County, Georgia, shortly afterwards. He lived on his father's plantation near La Grange, Georgia, until he was ten years old, enjoying the privileges and goods furnished by his father, who was a gentleman of quite some means. The young slaves on the plantation were fond of Luke and liked to bargain with him for dainties from the table in the "Big House." He would slip them things made of wheat flour, of which they had little, in return for special services they could render him.

He returned to Whitfield County with the family in 1870, where he attended school at Trickum Log School House in Dogwood Valley. After finishing the regular courses offered, he persuaded the school master to tutor him in advanced work. He was a good student and continued to study as long as he lived.

While quite a young man he fell in love with Angie Ray Harris, who had been a schoolmate in Trickum school. As a young stock dealer he made many profitable business deals for Angie's father, who was very fond of him. It pleased Mr. Harris to have Luke pay him in gold. This meant so much to him, probably because he had so recently experienced great losses caused by the Civil War. Gold was the one sound currency in the South at that time.

Luke and Angie were married December 16, 1880, in Dogwood Valley. They lived there for a number of years, during which time four children were born to them: Maude, William Claude, Jessie Harris, and Samuel Guy. Luke was a farmer and stock dealer until around 1890, when he moved with his family to Dalton, Georgia, where he served for twelve years as County Treasurer of Whitfield County. While in Dalton two other children were born, Nettie Jane and Troy Ray.

In 1904 the family moved to Chattanooga, Tennessee, where he was in the Stock business with his eldest son, William Claud Callaway, for nearly a quarter of a century, in the name of "Callaway Sale Stable."

In religion he was a Southern Methodist, in politics, a Democrat, and in fraternal orders, a Mason. Like others in the Callaway family his home and family were his life. He was unusually fond of children and enjoyed much happiness through his close association with his children and grandchildren.

Luke Henry Callaway died July 10, 1929, just four years after his wife's death. Both are buried in Forrest Hill Cemetery in Chattanooga, Tennessee.

WOODSON KIRBY CALLAWAY

I was born June 18, 1865, at Cuthbert, Randolph County, Georgia, where my parents had refugeed during the war. I was four years old when they moved back to Whitfield County, Georgia. I went to school at Trickum and Dogwood Valley, then attended Emory College, Oxford, Georgia, staying with Brother Morgan Callaway and wife.

I went to Texas June 1, 1882, at the age of seventeen to visit my brother Willis and wife Fannie and taught school at Goat Creek, about seven miles northwest of Kerville, Texas, in a log house with split logs for seats. Mr. Lorance was leaving Texas, going to middle Tennessee in a wagon, taking some ponies and his family. He paid me fifty cents a day to help him. Having two ponies of my own, and wanting to return home, I was glad to go with him. When we reached Tennessee I sold my ponies, caught a freight train going to Cornith, Mississippi, then took a passenger train for Tunnel Hill, Georgia, and walked the five or six miles home. I was on the road seventy-eight days. Some days we traveled ten miles, others fifteen. There were no bridges over the creeks or rivers, causing much trouble.

I bought a farm on Mill Creek and farmed awhile. I met Minnie Lydia Glaze at a party at Charley Harlan's home; we married three years later. After we married, I sold the farm and lived on the Glaze home place three miles from Dalton, Georgia.

Agnes and Jesse were born there in the twelve-room home, which later burned. We built a small house where Carlyle was born.

I moved to Oklahoma Territory, March, 1907, which became Oklahoma State in November. Minnie Lydia was born in Oklahoma.

I have been blessed with good health; I never had a doctor come to see me. I have lived on the farm I am now on for forty-one years, raising stock and farming. I am now eighty-three years young, and have four children and two grandchildren.

1868-1943

Ella Agnes Callaway was born in Meriwether County, Georgia, in 1868. She was the sixth child of Jesse Callaway's marriage to Mary Catherine Kirby. When she was a small child, her family moved back to northern Georgia, and she was raised on the Callaway Place in Whitfield County. Here she met and married Edwin Booker White in 1884. They lived near Trickum, Georgia, for some time, and in the early nineties moved to Oklahoma, returning to Georgia in 1907 or 8 and exchanging places with Kirby Callaway (Ella's brother) near Dalton, Georgia. They lived there until their deaths.

WAYLAND CALLAWAY

1869-1936

When news of Sherman's plan to march to the sea reached Jesse and Mary Callaway, they were living at Trickum, Georgia. After considering the danger it would mean to their family they fled to south Georgia, which was not in line of Sherman's planned march. While living in Meriwether County their last child was born August 29, 1869. He was christened Wayland.

When Wayland was still a young boy they returned to their former home at Trickum, where they lived as a happy, though struggling family. When Wayland was six years old, his father died.

Among the choice memories of Wayland's childhood were those of his school days. He spent his happy times at Trickum, Whitfield County, Georgia, and Pine Chapel in Gordon County, Georgia.

At the age of seventeen he moved with his mother to Mill Creek Valley, Whitfield County, Georgia, where he worked on the farm.

One afternoon a lovely lady from Atlanta, Georgia, came with her sister for a visit with Wayland's mother, Mrs. Jesse Callaway. She was admired for her quiet and assuming charm. During the afternoon the group decided to go to the spring located near the house. As they went around the corner of the kitchen Mae Irene Luckie came face to face with Wayland. Two years later she returned to the home not as a guest but as Wayland's bride. To this union nine children were born. The first, a girl, was lost at birth.

From this personality of high integrity, strong character, and lasting perseverance, and with the continued help of his devoted wife they reared and educated the remaining eight children; giving to each one the education of his choice. This is the monument that he built for the ages.

From this home influence of love and labor there was growing a devotion that has continued to cement this family of children together as one even after the passing of the father. This love has held them together whenever shadows hovered round about.

Wayland's married life was spent on the farm where he took Mae as a bride. It was a home built on the Rock.

When death came and his children and grandchildren came near, he must have said with Cormelia; Whose material possessions were few, but whose children were her life, "These are my Jewels." And a precious jewel passed on.

MY MOTHER

When One who walked the lowly paths of men
Had need that His companions learn some truth
Too fine, too deep for words, He gently then
Would clothe profundity in terms of youth.
He taught them through the dear familiar things—
The permeating leaven in the bread,
The cheerful constant light a trimmed lamp brings
That they might understand the truths unsaid.
So only God had wisdom to devise
Enough of lyric beauty to express
My Mother. Her smile, her luminous brown eyes
And gentle ways, and all her loveliness,
Were named in words of light by One above,
To be for me His parable of love.

By Dorothy Callaway

A MOTHER'S PRAYER

They are such little women,
My tall girls.
How fleet the years have been
Since golden curls
Were part of heaven on
My shoulder pressed,
And roseleaf hands were wings
Against my breast.
And now they hurry so
Away from me
Who must prepare them. Father,
Help me see
Where babies end and women
Really are,
That I may guide, but never
Dim their star.
Give to me strength and courage,-
Humor, too,
For this momentous thing
I have to do;
And that no lasting sorrow
Blur their eyes,
Oh God of all the mothers,
Make me wise.

Old Aunt Mandy

She sang about her "mansion in de skies"
In dulcet organ tones, all rich and low,
(Her skin looked blacker when she rolled her eyes
And wore gold "specs" and aprons white as snow).
Her life's philosophy was brief to tell—
She said it simply, gave herself no airs,
"I does my bes', an' feeds my white folks well,"
And now that she has climed the golden stairs,
I'm sure a crown sits grandly on her head,
While she feeds little angels gingerbread.

By Dorothy Callaway

This is put in for all the mammys, friends, and servants, and especially for Willie Mae, of the Callaway and Huffmeyer family.

THOUGHTS OF THE CALLAWAYS

Some are short in stature, others tall; the majority are robust and glowing with health. You find them all modest and unobtrusive. A mighty spirit radiates around them wherever they go, a spirit of valor that refuses to yield to any difficulties or obstacles that may arise, a spirit of helpfulness that often touches and advances help to the lives of others, a spirit of responsibility, of good workmanship that dedicates a complete unflagging devotion to the far-reaching enterprises of America. This same responsibility and devotion is closely woven in the spirit of the home. No one can mistake the cordial feeling of hospitality found in their heart, home, and handshake. They have a kind of valor that inspires others to take courage and press onward against their own troubles. Theirs is a dedication that sets a high example for all who would be faithful and competent in their line of duty.

You find a gentleness, a kindness, a soft-spoken voice reaching out toward humanity, from the home, from the job, and from the Pulpit. It has reached countless lives that will never be forgotten. Their guidance and encouragement will help anyone along at a crucial time. Readily and whole-heartily they come to the needy. They demand the best of themselves and expect the best from others.

I do not fear the younger generation or descendants will err or deviate very far from the solid worn path trodden by countless God-fearing Callaway men and women. Theirs has been a faith and religion that if followed by others would create honesty and good will to the extent of everlasting beauty.

CHARLES MALLORY CALLAWAY

Another Callaway family, long identified with Austin, Texas, is that of Charles Mallory Callaway. He was born in Georgia, May 27, 1852, the son of the Reverend William Anderson Callaway, who had one other child, a daughter, Lula.

From his home in La Grange, Georgia, Charles Callaway came to Texas in his youth. He located in Austin and married Lillie Evans. He died in Austin, Texas, December 30, 1922. For fifty years he was an employee in the State Land office.

Issue:

A—Charles Kendall Callaway, who married Neil Pyle. He lives in San Antonio, Texas. His daughter, Dorothy Callaway, was born in Austin, later removing to San Antonio, where for four years she was on the staff of the "San Antonio Express," serving variously as reporter, feature writer, music critic, assistant Sunday editor, editor of the music page, and on the "Houston Post" for the 1928 Democratic Convention. She died in San Antonio on August 28, 1939. Most of her writing had been done while confined to her bed. She won the Texas Prize of Poetry, Society of Texas, and many others.

B—Henry Dale Callaway, living in Austin, married George McFarland.

Issue:

A—Helen, who married Dr. H. B. Smith and lives in San Antonio.

B—Bessie, who lives in Austin, the wife of Horace C. Barnhart, manager of the Retail Merchants' Association. Issue: Helen and Horace, Jr

C—William Beverly Callaway, married Mamie Williamson. No issue.

D—Bessie Adeline Callaway, married J. W. McDugald. Issue:

A—James Wallace McDugald, married Helen Davidson. Issue: James III, Charles Davidson, and Tom Riley.

B—Charles Callaway McDugald, married Margaret Staniforth.

C—William Hogg McDugald, married Mimi Meredith. Issue: William, Jr.

E—Marjorie Callaway, married Dick Rosborough. No issue.

OSCAR CALLAWAY

Oscar Callaway, ex-congressman, was born at Harmony Hill, Rusk County, Texas, October 2, 1872. His parents were C. C. and Louise (Atwood) Callaway. He married Stella Couch of Red Oak, Ellis County, Texas, December 29, 1904. Both attended the University of Texas. They made their home in Comanche, Texas. He died January 31, 1947. His ancestors lived in Alabama. He is perhaps descended from John Callaway, son of Thomas, whose two sons, John, Jr. and Job, moved to Alabama. See Vol. 18 of "Who's Who in America," for sketch of Oscar Callaway. No issue.

RETURN FARRAR CALLAWAY

Return Farrar Callaway was born on April 8, 1869, and died December 14, 1923. His father was Marshall Timothy Callaway, born May 26, 1828, and died May 29, 1876, who was the son of Dr. Marshall Callaway, born 1803 and died 1828. Dr. Marshall Callaway married Grace Star Meggs, daughter of Timothy Meggs.

Return Farrar Callaway married Florence Alma Bradshaw on August 12, 1891. They had issue: Alberta, who married Paul E. Millsaps; Mammie, who married a Rice; Ida, who married a Colburn; Return Farrar, Jr.; and John Marshall.

This information given to me by

Mrs. Paul E. Millsaps of Chattanooga.

ADDITIONAL DATA ABOUT THE CALLAWAYS

Taken from "Campbell Chronicles and Family Sketches" by R. H. Early.

Referring to Dr. Thomas Walker's expedition in the 18th Century:

"From there Dr. Walker went on to Callaway's merchant store, supplied himself with rum (an article considered of the first importance); and thence pursued his journey over the main wagon road leading to New River. The home of Callaway was not far from where the town of New London, as Bedford County Seat, was located a little later, on Buffalo Creek near the main road."

About 1826 a member of the Callaway family, who owned the land that is now Five Points in Atlanta, traded it for a pair of mules.

The old family cemetery, where Jesse Callaway and other members of the family were buried, is still in existence in Whitfield County, Georgia, near the Old Callaway Home.
